Sustainability Panel: Improving the shareholder engagement processes—Returning European Capital Markets to end Investors

- How to ensure that minority shareholders have a real voice, especially at Annual General Meetings (AGMs), where their input could have the most impact? As the prime drivers behind sustainable investing, their input matters more than ever. What (legal) changes are necessary at the EU and national levels?
- Minority shareholders continue to be confronted with motions from majority shareholder calling for the adoption at AGMs of decisions that were not published upfront. How to best remedy this situation? By introducing provisions in national laws limiting the possibility to submit proposals for decisions other than those proposed within the convocations, and by ensuring these cannot be submitted later than the record date?
- How to encourage collective investment vehicles that empower shareholders to exercise their corporate rights individually?
- The European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA) as the European Financial Ombudsman? Delegated representatives in all EU Member States empowered to intervene in all proceedings of national-competent authorities to, when necessary, invoke common provisions of European law for the protection of investors?

Green Panel: Investment Opportunities in Green Slovenia and Europe

- Companies tend to take their environmental impact and social responsibility more seriously if they operate within a well-educated and environmentally conscious society. Should a system of environmental (green) ratings of companies, besides reporting on companies' specific environmental efforts, also take into account the overall efforts of the countries where the companies operate?
- The role of tax incentives: should we reward investments in companies with better ESG ratings?

Pension Savings Panel: What measures should be taken towards dismantling barriers that effectively suppress individual investments in securities for pension purposes, specifically the "pension" securities account?

- What role for tax incentives in promoting individual "pension" securities accounts?
- Strict limitation of costs that financial intermediaries may charge in respect to "pension" securities accounts.
- How to use Distributed Ledger Technology and Blockchain solutions to support the better functioning of "pension" securities accounts?

Digital Panel: Technological changes such as cloud computing, teleworking, e-business and the use of personal devices are increasing the risk of attacks on companies' IT infrastructure. Moreover, changes such as global suppliers, outsourcing and offshoring, and the need to reduce costs in all aspects of manufacturing, are creating new vulnerabilities. Therefore, businesses must consider cybersecurity strategies that are not solely focused on firewall and encryption techniques, as new threats also emerge from "trusted sources" such as employees, customers, partners and suppliers. Furthermore, cybercrime uses every opportunity to its advantage, where organised professional networks operate at the edge of the law and tolerance and develop a "black market". This jeopardises the legitimate interest of business, the unregulated power of large systems, but also human rights and civilisation. This short presentation will give an overview of the needs and trends in cyber security.
